

Emirates

Emirates is one of the fastest-growing airlines in the world and since its inception in 1985, has won more than 400 awards for excellence. Emirates' base of Dubai is an amazing two-centre stopover option if you are travelling further East or is a great holiday destination in its own right.

Emirates operates 15 daily flights from 6 UK airports (5 from London Heathrow, 3 from London Gatwick, 3 from Manchester; 2 from Birmingham and daily flights from Newcastle and Glasgow) to Dubai, where passengers can connect to over 100 destinations on 6 continents.

Emirates' worldwide network currently incorporates 65 countries in Europe, North America, South America, the Middle East, Africa, the Indian subcontinent and Asia-Pacific, with new destinations being launched yearly.

Wholly-owned by the government of Dubai, Emirates is often asked about the secret of its success. A passion to be the very best, innovation, a strong management team and astute cost consciousness are amongst the factors that have played an important role.

This approach has led to an array of product offerings such as the popular onboard ice system, loaded with hundreds of entertainment channels on-demand and a host of industry firsts. In March 2008, Emirates announced it was the first airline in the world to enable passengers to make authorised on board mobile phone calls a mile in the sky.

Emirates is on track to become one of the largest airlines in the world. Its fleet of 152 all wide-bodied aircraft is among the youngest in the skies, and includes 15 Airbus A380s with more on order.

The airline now operates the 'superjumbo' on selected departures from London Heathrow and Manchester to Dubai and on to selected worldwide destinations including Auckland, Bangkok, Beijing, Hong Kong and Sydney. All the aircraft's passengers can look forward to spacious next generation seating and up to 1,200 channels of on-demand entertainment. The A380 features the world's first onboard Shower Spa for First Class passengers and an onboard Lounge for all First Class and Business Class passengers.
